In the Spring of 1969, the City of Portsmouth decided to build its fifth high school in order to further desegregation in its system. The school, planned for modular and open space design, would serve the areas of Hodges Manor, Simonsdale, Olive Branch, Hattonsville, and Cavalier Manor. The facility would be community oriented and would be the first of its type in Tidewater.

Contracts were signed on August 11, 1970 by General Contractor William M. Jordan. Architects Williams & Tazewell of Norfolk were affiliated with Heery & Heery of Atlanta on the project. The building was scheduled for completion in August, 1971.

Manor High School was especially designed to serve as a community center as well as a school. The library, planetarium, field house, and little theatre were all to be open to the public.

In June, 1971, Charles K. Price was chosen principal. He reported to duty in September, 1971, after a year of work towards a doctorate in education at the University of Virginia. Mr. Price's knowledge of modular scheduling was instrumental in shaping the educational concept of the school.

Manor opened on September 5, 1972. The modern educational complex was best described as "open," . . . the open grounds outside, the open commons, classrooms, cafeteria, field house and theatre. Manor was also open in the sense that Mr. Price called it "a community school."

Elisabeth Miller and Nathan McCall Preside Over First Manor Bowl

The Manor Bowl, a spectacular highlight of the school year, was sponsored by the S.G.A. Since Manor, as a new school, would have no alumni in 1972-1973, the Manor Bowl was to take the place of a homecoming. A Mr. Manor and a Miss Manor were elected from the senior class to reign over the half-time celebration. Elected representatives from each class served as attendants to Miss Manor. Elisabeth Miller was elected Miss Manor, and Nathan McCall was elected Mr. Manor. The Manor Mustangs scored a 20-0 victory over the Norcom Greyhounds at the Churchland Stadium.

Nathan McCall and Elisabeth Miller reign as Mr. and Miss Manor.

Terry Hodges and Christine Copeland are two of the candidates for Miss Manor.

Nathan McCall, Robert Earls, and Gary Antonucci, candidates for Mr. Manor, look to the stands as they pass with the half-time parade.

Christmas Assembly Enriches Seasonal Spirit

Just before the Christmas holidays, the Choral Department gave a Christmas concert. This concert was performed before the entire student body and involved the Mixed Chorus, the Girls' Ensemble, the Girls' Glee Club, and the Men's Glee Club. During the concert, homeroom representatives brought decorated food baskets to the Field House. The baskets were a project of the S.G.A. and were later distributed by the Salvation Army to needy families. Climaxing the concert was the awarding of the Miss Christmas Seal title to Felecia Chambers.

Manor Students Display Artistic Abilities at First Talent Show

Clapping, screaming, and jiving best described the event of Thursday, March 1st as 40 Manor High School students braved two assemblies to present their talent. Oh's and Ah's were heard as Kathy Eddleman swung through her routine. Later, juniors and seniors came down out of the bleachers to dance to the sounds of the Little Big Man Band. Many acts were worked on for months while others came in to help out at the last minute.

“Crawling Arnold” Highlights Year for Drama Club

The cast included Jackie O'Donnell as Grace Enterprise, David Shea as Barry Enterprise, La Barbara Midgett as Millie, Roni Wilkie as Miss Sympathy, and Barry Staton as Arnold. Arnold was a thirty-five year old man who crawled upon coming home from work. Miss Sympathy was the social worker hired by Arnold's parents to “help him with his problem.”

"Day of Absence" Goes to Regional Festival

The Sweetheart Dance was held February 21, 1973 in the Manor Field House. Music was provided by the fabulous Rocking Souls. Over two hundred students were in attendance for Manor's first school dance. Special prizes were given to two "Sweetheart Couples." A good time was had by all.

Students Get Revenge in Student-Faculty Game

Opening tip-off begins game.

The junior class sponsored two student-faculty basketball games. The girls' student team, led by Kathy Eddleman and Jewel Jones, won impressively in both outings, 26-13 and 36-16. Mrs. Short was high scorer for the teachers. The men's teams split the pair. The first game was a seesaw battle all the way with the students making up a six point deficit to win in the final three seconds, 68-66. The second men's game was to spell revenge for the faculty team. Coach Black displayed his expertise by scoring 40 points as the teachers rallied to trounce the students, 77-67.

MHS Choral Department Presents "The Creation" — a Rock Cantata

"The Creation," a Rock Cantata by David Bobrowitz and Steven Porter, was presented by the Mixed Chorus and Girls' Ensemble, March 9, in the Little Theatre. This contemporary work was premiered by the Norman Luboff Choir in 1970 and was an instant hit with high school and college choirs. Faculty Talent Show Raises Money to Send Classes to Washington, D.C.

During the month of April, several administrators and faculty members became students. The occasion was The Faculty Show, better known as "As the Tone Sounds." Under the capable direction of Mrs. Alice Freeman, teachers became typical Manor students, and students became administrators and teachers in original skits which showed an average modular day. Some of the high spots were Mr. Glisson's magic act, Mrs. Wall and Mr. Williams' version of "de Bump," and all the great commercials (who could forget "Buck-U-Up-O-B"). Proceeds from the show helped send several classes on a cultural expedition to Washington, D.C.

The traditional place for a prom, the school gymnasium, was forsaken in lieu of the Manor High Square. The theme of the prom was "A New Creation," dedicated to Manor, "A New Creation in Education." Music was provided by The Positive Sounds. Electrical coordination was supplied by Mr. Thomas Smithwick, and art coordination was supplied by Mr. Kenneth Porter.

S.A.C. Works to Open Manor Successfully

Student Advisory Committee studies dress code problems.

The Student Advisory Committee was formed by Mr. Price to assist him in the opening of Manor with regard to student affairs. The students on the committee represented the entire student body and were selected by the principals and guidance counselors of the schools the students attended last year. Serving with the students were Thomas W. French, faculty advisor, George Moody, and John McGriff, administrative advisors. The committee selected the school mascot, nickname, and colors, arranged for the selection of cheerleaders, and worked on a dress code and conduct policy. It also compiled a student handbook and discussed organizations and publications that could be created for the school year. The committee met throughout the summer on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2:00 to 3:30 p.m. Their work represented positive approaches and peer group resolutions to problems. It enabled the opening of Manor to be both smooth and successful.

S.G.A. Maps Out Plans for First Year

This being the first year of Manor, the Student Government Association was involved in many fund-raising and school-oriented activities. The first big event was the Manor Bowl. This was the "Homecoming" game for the football season. Next, the S.G.A. conducted a "Teacher of the Month" contest by having a penny a vote for each teacher. Mr. Widgeon was elected as "Teacher of the Month." During the Christmas season, the S.G.A. conducted a basket and turkey money drive. Each homeroom decorated a basket and filled it with canned goods and other foods. Over $150 was collected for turkeys to be distributed to needy families throughout Tidewater. Another successful fund-raising drive was the Sweetheart Dance which raised over $100. The Red Cross came to Manor in March, and the S.G.A. helped set up and announce a Blood Donor Drive. Fifty-one pints of blood were collected for the Red Cross. Also, the S.G.A. raised $75.00 by selling booklets at the Eastern Regional Wrestling Tournament held at Manor in February. It was a busy year, but it was funfilled.

The S.G.A. discusses a future fund-raising project.

The first MUSTANG staff was formed in October consisting of students representing each class. Very few had experience in the production of a yearbook, but all were interested in making Manor's first yearbook a success.

The first task undertaken was one in which the entire staff participated. Advertisements were sold to help meet the cost of the book. Over eighty sponsors and patrons were found in the community.

When the processes began for organizing copy and pictures into pages for the book, the staff met for an hour after school, and when the new schedule began after Christmas, they met an hour before school each day. In room 136, students worked throughout the day during their independent study time. By the first deadline in February, nearly a hundred pages were completed, and the staff consisted of veterans who had gained valuable experience in layouts, writing copy, creating captions, and organizing pages and sections of the book.

After the first deadline was met, each staff member began selling yearbooks to classmates and students in homerooms. The sales were successful and ended in March with some staff members selling over thirty yearbooks.

In March, the second deadline was met with most of the book's pages completed. The last deadline was completed after graduation in order to cover the entire school year in the first MUSTANG.

The work of the annual staff throughout this year gave all of the members valuable experience in working together with a group towards a common goal, and they received much enjoyment in capturing the events and people of the year in print and picture.

MUSTANG HIGHLIGHTS Publicizes School Activities

The purpose of Creative Writing was to develop writing skills and practice techniques of fictional writing. In accomplishing this, the students produced two major projects for the year. The first was a section in the December edition of the school journal, THE KALEIDOSCOPE. This included a series of poems written by talented members of the class. The next project was a Horror Film Festival featuring several original horror films of the early 30's.

Elisabeth Miller, Terri Hughes, and Carl Turner work on character sketches.

All students were reviewed by an eight member faculty committee which included Mr. Price.

The first Society at M.H.S. was composed of previous members from Wilson and Cradock. During the year, they sold valentines and had a bake sale. The money was then used for an induction ceremony of new members which was held in May.

David Jones serves refreshments at the reception honoring the new members and their parents.

Manor Recognizes Outstanding Scholars

The publisher and editors of the LEDGER-STAR established the Tidewater Scholastic Achievement Team in order to recognize the achievement of superior students. The Scholastic Achievement Team membership has become a coveted honor. The finalist, who wins a $2,000 scholarship, brings distinction to himself, as well as his teachers and his school. This is because only six people from each participating high school are selected. From these schools, one senior class member is selected to represent his school for the Tidewater Scholastic Achievement Team. Brenda Stevenson was Manor's outstanding senior representative.

Mrs. Waters informs Brenda Stevenson that she has been selected as Manor's representative for the Tidewater Scholastic Achievement Team.

State Senator Canada Speaks to Forum

Although the Forum had interest in the outstanding contemporary problems of our society, the main thrust of its activities this year was of a political nature. Speakers representing both presidential candidates as well as the candidates in the 4th Congressional District were presented. The club also prepared to take an active role in Virginia's upcoming gubernatorial race. In March, Senator Canada visited the Manor Forum, speaking on community problems as well as his upcoming candidacy for Lt. Governor.

COMING SOON

The Manor Bible Club began the 1972-1973 school year with the goal in mind of showing students that life was more than just a daily routine, that life had real meaning. They believe that life at its fullest can only be received through Jesus Christ. Though He lived and died on the earth almost two thousand years ago, He lives again and gives new and eternal life to all who will accept His gift.

During the year, this idea was expressed through different means at all meetings. The Bible Club had several outstanding speakers from local churches and also held some discussion groups where the members attempted to discuss some of today's relevant issues and what the Bible has to say about them. The Bible Club also had a few informal meetings during the year, including going Christmas caroling and having a picnic. To close out the year, the club held a special banquet. The president, Bobby Thompson, spoke, summarizing the year's activities and setting forth the goals for the next school year.

Sketch Party Winds Up Year's Activities for Art Club

The purpose of the Art Club was to promote an interest in art and give students an opportunity to enjoy a variety of art experiences. The members served as guides and helped with the serving of refreshments to the art teachers of Portsmouth and other guests who met at Manor in November. At our work meetings, the members painted murals and made posters and signs which were requested by various persons or groups at school. A sketch party ended the year's activities.

in Musical Performances

Band members line up for half-time performance.

The Manor Band marches in pep rally.

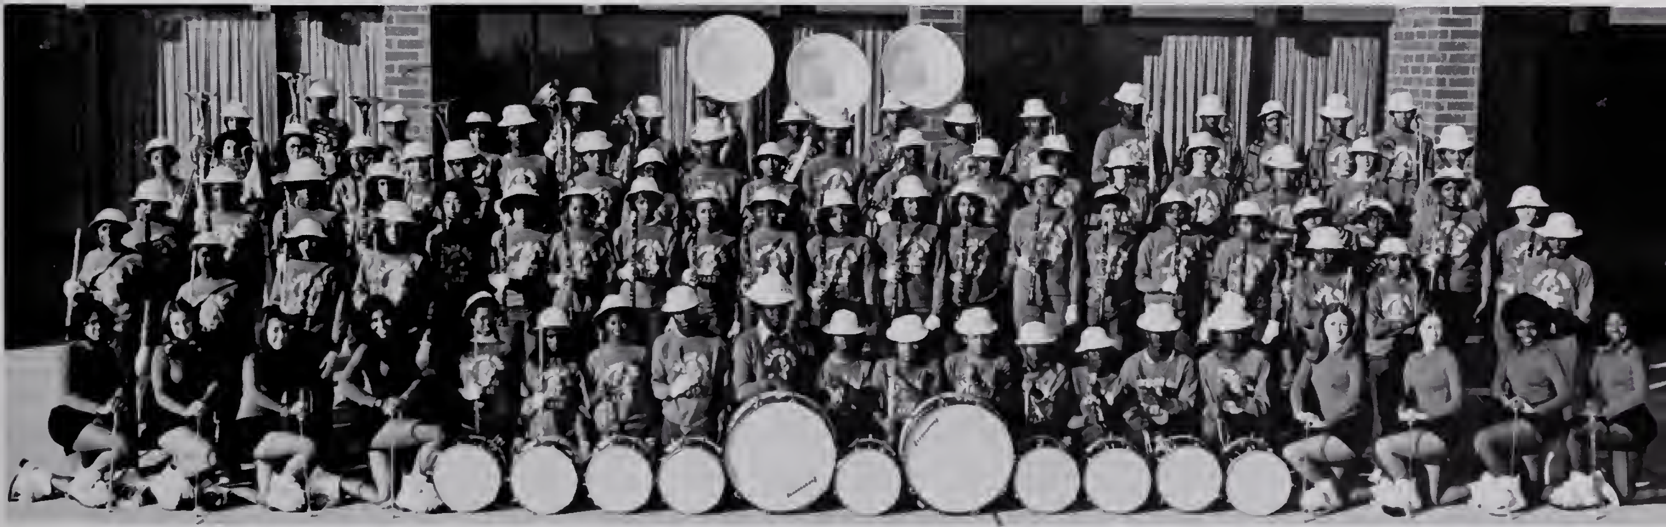
The Manor High School "Band of Champions" was indeed three bands in one. They were the Marching Mustangs, the Concert Band, and the Intermediate Band. This musical organization also included instrumental ensembles and soloists.

The Marching Mustangs were the talk of Tidewater with their multi-meter drum cadences, high knee lifts, snappy turns, and precision marching. Featuring the "sound of tomorrow," the band performed sequences from the television productions of "All in the Family" and "The Flip Wilson Show."

They were invited to Mexico City and to the Myrtle Beach, S.C., Band Festival, but they were unable to participate in either of the events due to lack of funds and uniforms.

The Concert Band performed at a high level of musical achievement. Perfection was its aim. Performances included the District Festival and several local concerts. Two members of the "Band of Champions" participated in the Band Clinic held at Morehead University, Kentucky. Leonard Giles earned third highest score of 29 euphoniums in auditions for the top clinic band, and Barbara Amos scored third highest of 89 trumpets in the same event. Andrew Blackburn (oboe) and Leonard Giles (euphonium) successfully auditioned for seats in the prestigious All-Virginia Band. Cornell Wells placed as first alternate on bass clarinet.

Manor placed 35 musicians in the All-Regional Band, more than any other school in the district.



The Manor Marching Band and Majorettes

Majorettes Participate in Annual Christmas Parade

During the summer of 1972, many young ladies who possessed twirling and marching abilities auditioned for the Majorette Squad of the brand new edition of the Manor Marching Band.

Some were former majorettes of Cradock, Norcom, and Wilson High Schools. By August of 1972, the squad was formed, consisting of ten pretty and high stepping young ladies who proudly represented Manor in their bright red, black, and white uniforms.

The most popular half-time shows were the majorettes' presentation of "The Big M," "Flip Wilson," and "All in the Family." They participated in the Annual Christmas Parade, Norfolk State Homecoming Parade, and the Memorial Day Parade.

The year was a busy one for the majorettes because they were constantly engaged in fund-raising projects for the purchasing of new uniforms.

The Choral Department of Manor High School had a very busy year. It began with the annual Sing-a-long held at T.A. Willett Auditorium with Churchland, Cradock, and Wilson High Schools.

In November, 50 of the members auditioned for the Regional Chorus, and 31 of them were selected, giving Manor the largest number of students from any school participating.

At Christmas, the Chorus participated in the Lancaster Christmas Concert, P.T.A. Program, and traveled to Williamsburg where they performed at Eastern State Hospital and participated in the Grand Illumination of the City.

In February, four of the members were selected for All-State Chorus. They were Lori Gardner, Kathy Mercer, Lennel Owens, and Clarence Sykes.

In March, an unusual musical presentation was performed — "The Creation," a Rock Cantata based on the first chapter of Genesis.

In April, 50 of the members were selected to participate in the All-City Chorus under the direction of Dr. Gordon Ohlssohn, head of the Music Department of Madison College.

The Annual Spring Concert was held in May, climaxing a most successful first year for the Chorus.

Outstanding members of the group participated in All-Regional String Orchestra, All-Regional Band, All-State String Orchestra, All-State Band, and the Solo and Ensemble Festival.

C.O.E. students undertook several money-making projects during the year. These included candy sales, doughnut sales, and stationery sales. The money raised helped defray the cost of the Employer-Employee Banquet which took place in May. This dinner recognized the employers who participated in the C.O.E. program by employing Manor High School students.

Distributive Education Clubs of America are to D.E. students what a civic or professional organization is to a group of businessmen. Chapter activities are recognized as a part of the total D.E. program because of their development of leadership ability, professional attitude, better citizenship, and social growth of the individual.

The D.E. Club of Manor hosted the City-Wide D.E.C.A. Fall Rally in October. Early in November, the Manor D.E.C.A. officers attended a leadership workshop sponsored by the Distributive Education Department of Old Dominion University. They also conducted a candy sale as a fund-raising project. In February, the District D.E.C.A. contest was held at Kempsville High. Manor D.E.C.A. won first place judging and second place job interview. In March, the first place winner in sales judging and two delegates attended the Virginia State Leadership Conference at the Hotel Roanoke in Roanoke. In May, the Employer Appreciation Banquet was held in recognition of the employers.

The club to which all Industrial Cooperative Training students belong is known as V.I.C.A. — The Vocational Industrial Clubs of America.

The main purpose of the club, as evidenced in the club motto, "Preparing for Leadership in the World of Work," is to develop leadership abilities in all the students who join. This is accomplished through a series of leadership activities and projects.

The V.I.C.A. students began the year by attending the Annual Fall Leadership Rally. In March, students participated in various leadership contests on the district level, and in April, students who won first place awards, attended the annual Virginia Association of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America State Leadership Conference and Convention. This was held in the Hotel Roanoke the second week in April.

To close the year, the Fourth Annual City-Wide I.C.T. Employer-Employee Banquet was held at the Tidewater Dinner Theater. Each year, this function is carried out to show appreciation to the employers for the on-the-job training received throughout the year.

Thirty-four charter members began early in the year to plan activities and programs for their selected theme, "Decisions That Count." Members decorated the home economics department and helped to give a Christmas tea for the administration and faculty of Manor.

In February, the members visited a home for the aged, took gifts, talked and entertained the residents.

National F.H.A. week was observed from April 1-7, 1973. Highlights of F.H.A. week were a Mother-Daughter Banquet and a visit to the children's ward of one of the local hospitals.

Students Serve As Office Aides

The office runners were a tremendous help this year. They located students for assistant principals, duplicated materials in the general office, typed, and greeted the general public. Their help enabled the office to run more smoothly and efficiently.

Students Assist Librarians, Nurse, and Guidance Counselors

The high school library could not have functioned properly and smoothly without the help of a very special group — library aides. They checked books in and out, reshelved books, and kept the library in good order.

There were parties for the aides at Christmas time and at the end of the school year.

Second Row: Susan Gupton, Elaine Williams, Jacqueline Towe, Elaine Watson, Denise Young, Angela Lancaster, Edwina Thompson, Marina Grubbs, Terry Sherwood, Anita Dailey, Karen Charlton.

At Manor High School, student aides in the Guidance Office were an essential segment in the guidance process. The types of services rendered by these young people and the amount of their time given to these services were extremely creditable.

Some of their duties were assisting in filing, placing appointment slips and other materials in teacher's mailboxes, answering the telephone when the clerks were busy, keeping supplies neatly stacked on the shelves, delivering messages and materials to students and faculty, and receiving guests who visited the Pupil Reception Office.

Godwin, Harris, and Austin Earn Post Season Honors

Coach Beale holds the game ball.

The 1972 Manor Mustangs had a very good season, finishing with a 7-3 record in spite of a challenging schedule for a first-year team. They were average in size and stature, but they also possessed a deep desire to develop a winning tradition at Manor. This was evidenced by their few losses, two of which were by only two points.

The Mustangs started the season with high hopes. The first scores were encouraging: Churchland 12-0, Western Branch 14-8, Suffolk 20-6, and Cradock 8-0, with Manor on top in all four games. The winning streak was then broken.

On a Friday the 13th, Manor met the Bethel Bruins. Most people had never heard of the Bruins before that night but by the end of the game the score was Bethel 25, Manor 12. Undaunted, the mighty Mustangs went on to defeat the Deep Creek Hornets 18-14. They then picked up an easy 22-16 victory over James Blair. A 10-8 defeat by Great Bridge temporarily set them back, but they quickly recovered to smash Norcom 20-0. The season ended with a 14-12 loss to Indian River.

Placing second in the Southeastern District and winning the Portsmouth City Championship left Manor with an air of confidence and even greater expectations for next season.

Coach Morrison takes a long, hard look at action on the field.

The J.V. football team found itself with a rookie staff and about 50 youngsters with a strong desire to play football. After 10 full days of practice, the squad was reduced to 33 players. Among these were Greg Faircloth, a Quarterback with good leadership ability, George Lee, a quick and explosive running back, and other running backs such as James Roberts, Steven Bynum, and Garland Bennett. To complement a sound running game were such outstanding receivers as Earnest Myrick and Mark Hudson. To go along with this attack were the best linemen anywhere in the area. Names like Jay Scott, Allan Harrell, Gene Jones, Ron Jones, William Manley, Reginald Whitehead, Wailon Jordan, Robert Jones, Roderick Rountree, and Wayne Johnson made our opponents shiver. The defense consisted of Daryl Person, Frank Chauncey, and Willie James at linebacker, and Waverly Debraux, Maurice Spruill and James Roberts as defensive backs. This line-up with a strong bench, a little school support, a friendly atmosphere, and a "little" coaching all added up to a J.V. Championship team.

Alvin Davis, Garland Knight, David Poole, and Richard Griswold take a turn around the track.

For a first year school with a new coach and few veteran athletes, Manor High School's Cross Country team did amazingly well. Their final record was 6-0, and the team was runner-up to Wilson in the Southeastern District Championship.

The team made its debut against Western Branch. The course record was set that day by Donald Hawkins as he led the Mustangs to a 21-36 victory.

The rest of the season's meets came and went as Manor proved to be a team that ran on desire, team spirit, and determination as well as talent. Indian River fell 26-39. Cradock was beaten 22-39, and then Churchland succumbed 24-35 to Manor's depth. Norcom forfeited because they could not post a team, and Manor became 5-0 with Deep Creek as the only team standing in the way of an undefeated season. The two teams met at Tidewater Community College, and Manor was the victor 21-43, thus becoming the only team in the district with an unblemished record.

Outstanding individuals make an outstanding team, and Manor was no exception. Donald Hawkins won every dual meet and ended up with the final course record at 11:21.5. Ray Lee, who had never run cross country before, placed second in the district with an inspirational effort. Keith Silver, Garland Knight, and Mark Hudgins did a good job at backing up and giving the team the spirit and desire they needed. David Thereault, Stewart Jones, Richard Griswold, and David Poole were other runners who helped the team go undefeated.

Against seemingly insurmountable odds, Manor came out on top. What else could have happened when one had a team with conviction and determination to win?

On November 1, 1972, about forty or more prospects tried out for the Varsity basketball team. The group was reduced to thirteen academically eligible students who were the most athletically qualified. On December 1, the new and basically inexperienced team, benefiting from only two returning lettermen, met its first opponent. There was no doubt that the players were hard working and extremely competitive, but inexperience in playing as a unit hindered the team's ability to play.

As the season progressed, it was easy to see that the players were becoming more familiar with each other and were working more smoothly as a unit. This fact was reflected in the team's record which improved later in the season. Johnnie Walton was selected Most Valuable Player at the end of the season. In addition, he led all scorers with a 12.1 point per game average.

The overall record showed 5 wins and 13 losses but did not reflect the outstanding attitude exemplified by the team members.

At the beginning of the season, only Curt Smith had any season wise game experience. James Roberts, Morris Williams, and John James were on the J.V. team at Wilson last year. Bill Mahoney had played on the J.V. team at the school he attended in Wisconsin. The J.V.'s started their season poorly, losing their first two games. The tide changed as they won five of the next six games. After losing two more games, they started a winning streak of five games before losing the final game to Norview. Curt Smith, Bill Mahoney, James Roberts, Morris Williams, and Ken Garrett played very well together, especially during the latter part of the season. The rest of the team also played an important part coming off the bench and filling in very well. Overall the team experienced a successful season.

There were some very pleasant wrestling surprises this year. Both Coach Sweet and Coach Bright were happy with the outcome of this year's Manor wrestling season. With only two people having had any varsity experience before this year, the Mustangs were able to gain three victories during the regular season. In the District Tournament, Manor had one champ, Carl Turner (at 119), one 2nd place, Garland Bennett (at 98), one 4th place, Buddy Sharp (at 155), and two 5th places, Danny Mundon (at 145) and David Hughes (at 185).

Carl Turner represented Manor in the State Tournament, placing third. Both coaches felt that Manor was about two years ahead of schedule and that next year should be even more successful.

As far as Coach Sweet was concerned, all the junior varsity wrestlers were winners. Each member of the team gained valuable experience for the coming year at Manor. Manor's first varsity baseball team faced its season with an inexperienced line-up. Only three team members, Buddy Miner, Coy Godwin, and Donnie Johnson, had experience as starters from last year's Wilson team. The team proved to be hard working but their future as a new team lacking experience was questionable. As the season began with non-conference games, Manor lost its first three to teams which were the best in the area. The team played consistently well, each of the losses being by only one run. Later inconsistency in play occurred because of inexperience and the improper working combination of players. As the conference games began, the nine regulars that were to be the starting line-up most of the season had been selected. By the middle of the conference schedule, Manor had won a few games against good teams and had gained much confidence. However, after a game postponement, they went into another slump. The season ended with an upset victory over the district's first place team as the team once again had all the elements necessary for victory.

J.V. Prospects Brighten Future Baseball

Despite a 3-4 season, the J.V. baseball team was characterized by determination and hustle. The team displayed exceptional fielding ability throughout the season. Donald Hawkins was district mile and two-mile champion as well as outstanding athlete in the district meet. He had an undefeated season in the mile and two-mile. Garland Knight, Keith Silver, and Dexter Cherry also did a great job under Coach Widgeon's tutelage. In the field events, which were under Coach Wilson's supervision, Alvin Lewis in the high jump tied for the district championship, and Joe Nixon placed third in the discus. The four young men who placed in the top five in the district represented Manor in the Eastern Regional Meet. They were Joe Nixon in the shot put, Alvin Lewis in the high jump, Garland Knight in the 440, and Donald Hawkins in the two-mile run. Donald Hawkins proved to be the best two-miler in the region as he won his event in 9:35.5, a new school record.

Varsity Cheerleaders' Key Word Is SPIRIT!

What a busy year for the Varsity Cheerleaders — football, cross country, track, wrestling, basketball, and baseball. Promotion of proper cheers and good sportsmanship were the specific purposes behind their many efforts. Long hours of practice, painting posters, making team favors, selling buttons, cutting felt pennants, and decorating the gym were the extra jobs of every cheerleader. They were an important part of the sports crowd. They felt the same thrills, exuberations, and even depressions that the players themselves felt. The key word was always "SPIRIT!"

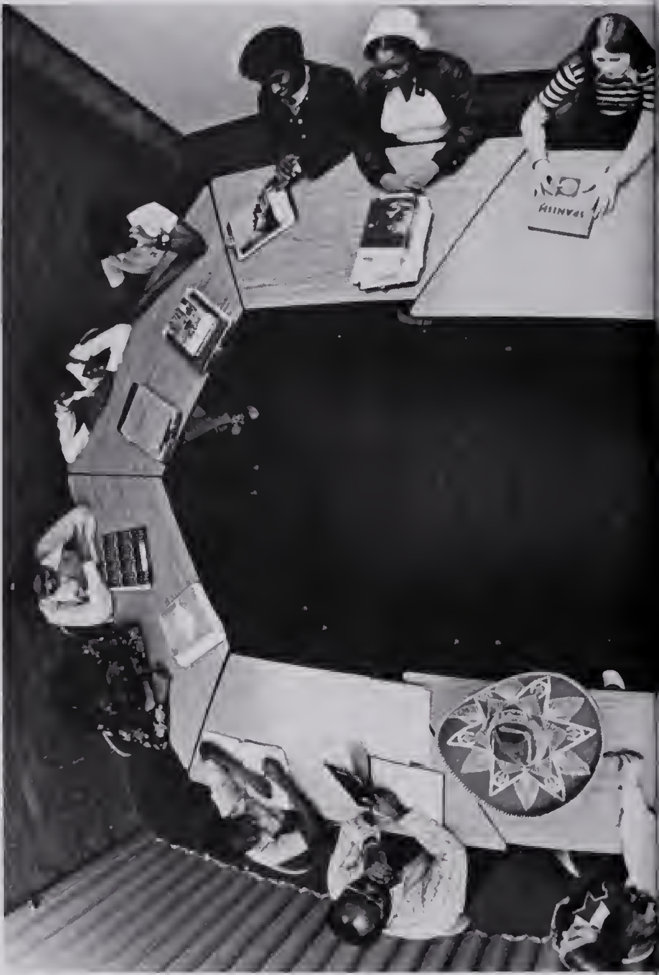
J Lab

Manor Goes

Manor High School opened this year with a new type of schedule intended to allow students to progress according to their individual abilities as well as to develop independent study habits for college and adult life. Modular scheduling made use of teams of teachers, all of whom saw students during the six-day cycle of classes in one or more of the four major types of classes.

The J lab was also an independent study laboratory. Here, the student was more on his own than in Quest. The teacher might have been a member of the student's teaching team, but he might also have been another teacher from the same department or even one of Manor's large corps of student teachers working under a special teacher-education program sponsored by Old Dominion University. These teachers assisted students with assignments, projects, learning packages, or other school work.



Seminar

Large Group

The most unusual class grouping at Manor was the Large Group. Taught by the entire team together, the Large Group section might have had thirty to ninety students in a room, where topics were introduced, films were viewed, and guest speakers were presented.

"Mod"

In the Quest class, the students worked alone on projects assigned or started in the Seminars, and a member of their teaching team was on hand to answer questions or provide explanations. Of course, sometimes an entire Quest section would need help with the same material, and the teacher would then decide to teach the group in a way much like the older traditional schools most of us remembered from earlier years.

Quest

Students and teachers considered the Seminar the key to Manor's program. It was here that small groups of students met with one teacher from their team to hold discussions, analyze problems, and investigate areas of interest. Tests and assignments were usually made in Seminars, and the Seminar teacher became the "home" teacher in most classes.

Although not a part of any individual class, Independent Study represented an important aspect of the student's schedule. Whenever they were not in classes or at lunch, students were assigned to I.S. holding areas, where they could work on assignments and learning activities under the supervision of a teacher. If they preferred, students could sign out of holding areas and use their I.S. time to work in resource centers, labs, practice rooms, the library, the gym, and other portions of the building. A wide variety of non-credit mini-courses was also provided, ranging in subject from the contemporary novel to lessons in guitar playing. A plan instituted during the second semester permitted students who displayed exceptional ability and maturity to receive identification cards releasing them from all I.S. holding areas. These students could make the fullest possible use of I.S. time through the wide variety of facilities available at Manor High School.

Independent Study

Modular scheduling was not the answer to all problems, but it did help. It provided variety and change in the school day, it helped students prepare for adult responsibilities, and it allowed each student to progress as quickly or as slowly as he needed. One year of operation has convinced most of us that Manor High School took a tremendous step forward with the decision to "Go Mod."

All students at Manor were required to take English for four years in order to graduate. During the freshman and sophomore years, students studied basic types of literature and developed grammar and composition skills which prepared them for a chronological study of American Literature in the junior year and of British

Maps, Society, the Past—Social Studies

Mrs. Moore tells her class about the discoveries of new trade routes to the Far East.

The Social Studies department offered Black Studies, American History, United States Government, World History, World Geography, and Sociology. Black Studies was taught from a Humanities approach and included not only black history, but delved into social and political problems, religion, art, music, literature, sports, dance, and the theater, as well as the part played by the black in the military. The World History course was designed to enlarge the thinking and understanding of the students so that they could see the history of their own country. Through factual knowledge, the students developed a better understanding of the world today and an appreciation of other people and their cultures. For many of the students, this course served as a stimulus for an increasing interest in literature, art, music, or travel.

The American History course was designed to give the student a general knowledge of the United States from the Colonial Era to her present position of world power. Students studied this course through colonialism, democratic idealism, and sectionalism. World Geography was taught with several objectives in mind. The course stimulated an interest in the people and nations of the world and promoted understanding and appreciation of the varying cultural patterns, their affects on man, and their contributions to our world. Government explained more clearly the nature of our government and society, their ideals, their values, their good points, and their shortcomings. Sociology included a study of contemporary areas such as crime, poverty, marriage, urban problems, welfare and overpopulation.

Experimenting, Testing, Recording— Science

Since the beginning of man, science has been a mystery with billions of unanswered questions. Science and its technology have played an enormous role in our lives. Courses offered were Physical Science, the study of energy and matter; Biology, the study of plants, animals, and their interactions; Physics, the study of motion, heat, electricity, and light; Chemistry, the study of the composition and structure of matter.

Science students explored their world in a new and different way. There were five science rooms where students could do individual research. Science projects were prepared by many students. Hours of independent study time were spent in the project rooms trying to reach Science Fair deadlines. Along with science projects, students had individual assignments such as exhibits for display cases, experiments, and research papers.

Triangles, Equations, Graphs—Mathematics

General Mathematics offered the student knowledge and accuracy in the fundamental operations involving whole numbers, common fractions, decimal fractions, and percents. He developed the ability to apply these operations in the solution of everyday problems. In Consumer Math, the students were provided a practical and useful knowledge of math, banking, investments, credit buying, household finance, profit and loss, while students of Practical Math worked with the idea of creating an awareness of the usefulness of math in many jobs which were available. Algebra I students worked a modern treatment of basic ideas and prepared for Algebra II with the varying degrees of skill in using the techniques of elementary Algebra. Most of the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades studied Geometry which offered integrated elements of plane, solid, and coordinate geometry. Trigonometry referred to demonstrating the interdependence between real and complex numbers and functions of them along with trigonometric functions. Analysis was designed to present basic principles of higher mathematics and introductory calculus.

Translating, Conjugating, Taking Dictation— Foreign Language

The Foreign Language department offered courses in French, Spanish, and Latin. Foreign Language sought to contribute to the needs of young people and to enrich their lives by developing their abilities to understand, speak, read, and write the language with reasonable accuracy and ease. The foreign language department motivated and enhanced student learning through various types of media and audio visual equipment. Two language laboratories were used to develop skills in listening comprehension and oral pronunciation and practice.

Tapes in typing, shorthand, and speed writing were used to help the business students at Manor this year. The Business Department offered Typing I and II, Shorthand I and II, Recordkeeping, Bookkeeping, Business Law, Clerk Typing, and General Business. Selected students from the Clerk Typing and Shorthand II classes served as typists, secretaries, and stenographers. Several of the classes visited courts and filing businesses enabling them to better grasp the opportunities offered in the current business world. There were approximately 500 students enrolled in business courses. The boys were mainly interested in Business Law, Bookkeeping, General Business, and Typing I. The girls were engaged in block programs which consisted of two hours or more of one subject.

Buzzes, Hums, Taps— Industrial Arts

The buzzing of a saw, the loud hum of a drill, and the tap of a hammer told the casual viewer that this was no ordinary classroom. Woodshop dealt with woodworking and carpentry. In another classroom, the scene was entirely different — an individual huddled over his own drawing board. Mechanical Drawing I started off the student with a workbook. By Mechanical Drawing III, he could design his own home. Power and Transportation dealt with such areas as internal combustion engines. Communications involved electricity and photography. A few students spent the entire year trying to "jam" the radios without anyone knowing who did it.

Jobs, Progress Reports, Classes—Vocational Education

D.E. I provided the pupil with an opportunity to learn about careers in marketing and distribution prior to acquiring future employment. D.E. II instructed the development of competencies in selling, sales promotion, and operations while D.E. III, an accelerated course, placed emphasis on the development in market research, merchandising, and sales promotion. I.C.T. was divided into two units. In the first year, the workers were taught directly by concerned, individual classroom instruction which affected the pupil in his own job. He generally studied personality traits, personal progress, economic needs, budgeting, wages, and insurance. I.C.T. students in the second year followed the same procedures with an upgrading of both general and directly related materials.

Singing, Playing, Drawing—Fine Arts

Fine Arts offered the students orchestra, band, chorus, and art. The choral program at Manor instilled within the students a greater appreciation of the choral art, helped them develop techniques and skills through sincere dedication, and prepared them to serve the school and community as ambassadors of the finest quality of music. Art I was an introduction to terms, basic designing, principles of painting, and the history and appreciation of art. In Art II, the students made crafts, drew, and expressed themselves on paper. In Art III and IV, the students were allowed to diversify. The band and orchestra students learned the fundamentals of instruments and how to express their emotions through music. These courses allowed the students to develop a more cultured background that could be useful throughout life.

Sewing, Cooking, Tasting—Home Economics

Miss Hearn picks out a new pattern.

The Consumer and Homemaking Education program helped the students strengthen their concept of the home and family as an important social, cultural, and economic unit in society, as well as aided in the individual development of the students. Instruction was centered around the following four major family areas: management in the family, consumption of goods and services in the family, individual development in the family, and cultural development in the family. Students enrolled in courses in Consumer and Homemaking Education I through V had units in each of these four family living areas. Specific concepts and control were developed into mini units. Students assumed a role in determining which unit would be given major emphasis, and they were given an opportunity to assist in planning and preparing their learning packages.

Blood, Sweat, Tears—Physical Education

Physical Education used activity as a medium to bring about social, physical, emotional, and mental development. In the program at Manor High School, students selected activities based on their needs and interests. Some of the activities that were available this year were soccer, field hockey, tennis, gymnastics, basketball, volleyball, weight training, softball, golf, and track. Generally, activities for boys and girls were separate, but some of the classes were coeducational. Health instruction in the ninth grade stressed community and consumer health, physical fitness and recreation, and drug education. Instruction in the tenth grade consisted of one semester of driver education and one semester of survivial training.

Quiet Meditation, Assigned Work, Resource Center— Independent Study

This year the students at Manor were given something new — mods of free time, sometimes a total of 12 to 15, to be used as independent study time. Independent study gave the individual an opportunity to complete assigned work, do special reports, or obtain notes to go to the resource room, library, or other places. Many who did not have anything to do became familiar with chess, checkers, or gossiped with their friends. Some students used their independent study time to participate in mini-courses. These mini-courses were non-credit classes covering subjects of student interest. These classes met once a cycle. The main two mini-courses held at Manor were English and Guitar.

The Naval Junior R.O.T.C. at Manor this year had four basic objectives. The R.O.T.C. program promoted habits of teamwork and precision and developed respect for constituted authority. It promoted patriotism and developed a high degree of personal honor, self-reliance, individual discipline, and leadership. Also, it provided a means for students to become better informed citizens on matters of national security and gain a knowledge and an appreciation of the U.S. Navy's role in the national defense structure. This year, the N.J.R.O.T.C. was under the capable leadership of Capt. Page and Chief Mondy.

Mr. Charles K. Price, Principal

Manor Makes a New Beginning Under Charles K. Price

Manor High School was both proud and fortunate to have Mr. Charles K. Price as its first principal. Mr. Price is a graduate of the University of Richmond and is near completion of his doctorate in education at the University of Virginia. Before coming to Manor, he was a social studies teacher at Woodrow Wilson High School and an assistant principal at I. C. Norcom High School, Harry A. Hunt Junior High School, and various elementary schools in Portsmouth. He has a positive attitude towards modular scheduling and feels that it is beneficial to the education of high school students. Both academically and athletically, Mr. Price feels that Manor has one of the most talented student bodies in the state of Virginia.

In reviewing this first year at Manor, Mr. Price made the following comments: "Modular scheduling and the refinements that we are projecting for the educational program of Manor hold great promise and will establish trends in high school education in the area. As expected, we had problems of adjustment to this new educational program; however, by being flexible and making necessary changes, we have resolved these problems to the benefit of our students and the instructional program. As we gain more experience and refine the program, it will measure up to our initial expectations."

Mr. Price confers with Missy Martin, Craig Wood, Donna Stewart, and Janet Parker.

Mr. McGriff, Along with Administrative

Mr. John L. McGriff feels it a great honor to be the first assistant principal at Manor. He holds degrees from Virginia State College and Columbia University in New York. Before coming to Manor, he was a teacher at Norcom for 31 years and was assistant principal for 5 years. He feels modular scheduling is still in its first stages, and it's the students who will make Manor and modular scheduling a success.

Senior Activities Include Senior Day And Senior Night

The first Senior class of Manor High School participated in a series of graduation-related activities beginning with Senior Day on which seniors dressed as they did when they were in the first grade. On June 4, an assembly was held for the student body. At this time, the Senior class presented gifts to the school — a walnut podium and a flag bearing the student-designed school seal. June 5 was Class Night directed by Mrs. Diggs and Mr. Roberts. The program was a parody on television shows and commercials that had been popular during the twelve years the seniors were in school. On June 8, a reception was held honoring graduates and their parents. A short program in the field house was followed by a beautifully catered reception in the cafeteria.

Portsmouth's Summer School Graduation Exercises Held at Manor

The first graduation exercise held at Manor was at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, August 12, 1972. 158 diplomas were issued to seniors completing requirements during summer school. The graduates represented eight high schools of school divisions of Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Chesapeake, Suffolk, and Nansemond County. Mr. Charles K. Price, Principal of Manor, awarded the diplomas, and Mr. Les Fry, Chairman of the Portsmouth School Board, delivered the commencement address. Miss Deborah Garthwaite, a member of the graduating class, was mistress of ceremonies. The invocation was delivered by Dr. Harvey N. Johnson, a former member of the Portsmouth School Board. Music was provided by the school band directed by Mr. Emery L. Fears. Members of the Student Advisory Committee served as ushers.

Summer school seniors eagerly await their diplomas.
